

BLACK HISTORY MONTH 2017 PRESENTATION

- TITLE: Looking Ahead with James L. Stowe
- SPEAKER: James L. Stowe, Director
Montgomery County's Office of Human Rights
- DATE: Saturday, February 11th, 2017 at 3:00pm
We will open at 2:00pm to allow guests to preview the gallery.
- WHERE: Sandy Spring Slave Museum & African Art Gallery, Inc.
18524 Brooke Rd., Sandy Spring, MD 20860
www.SandySpringSlaveMuseum.org
SlaveMuseum@yahoo.com

Professional Summary

The Office of Human Rights provides leadership to the people of the County and works towards eliminating racism/discrimination; identifying and resolving community tensions; and educating citizens about cultural diversity. Mr. Stowe has been instrumental in developing new program initiatives and re-positioning the Office for success in the 21st Century. He has been a tireless worker and advocate for fairness in housing, employment, education, and the criminal justice system. He leads the effort to combat hate crime violence, violence against religions, racial profiling by police, and human trafficking. Finally, Mr. Stowe is a tireless supporter and advocate for social and cultural diversity through art, music, dance, and education.

This is a FREE program open to the public.

We follow Montgomery County Public Schools for weather-related closings. For more information contact SlaveMuseum@yahoo.com or our website www.SandySpringSlaveMuseum.org